The largest impact on growth has been on tourism dependent economies oil exporting countries have also been hit hard.

In Nigeria, the economy will shrink by 4.3% in 2020 because of low oil prices reduced oil production and declining domestic demand.

In South Africa, growth will contract by 8% in 2020

Most sub-Saharan African countries started to ease lockdown measures around the end of April

There are tentative signs of recovery in the second half of 2020.

As a whole, the region is not expected to recover to 2019 levels until 2022.

the resilience of the region's health institutions

a path of sustainable and inclusive development.

Fiscal and monetary policy

the region could face a financing gap of the order of $290 billion.

There is a need to implement governance reforms to improve trust in the rule of law through digitalization, to climate change mitigation will help promote economic resilience.

helping secure a more resilient and prosperous future for all.
